
Establishment of temporary site compound – White Bay

30 November 2007

Dear householder,

Temporary work site compound White Bay.

The Sydney Harbour Bridge is regularly undergoing improvement, maintenance and further upgrading to ensure its longevity. A major program of works has been scheduled with completion planned for early 2009.

This program of works will be delivered by BridgeWorks Alliance, a team consisting of the Roads and Traffic Authority, Baulderstone Hornibrook, Connell Wagner and Austress Freyssinet.

A temporary work site compound will be established at Berth 2, adjacent to Robert Street, White Bay for a period of up to 18 months. This compound is necessary to provide worker amenities, storage and it will be the depot at which materials can be assembled and then delivered to the underside of the Sydney Harbour Bridge using water transport.

The anticipated operating hours for the compound will be largely:

During establishment (December 2007) and disestablishment (March 2009)

- Monday to Friday: from 7am to 5pm, Saturday: from 8am to 1pm.

During operations (December 2007 – March 2009)

- Monday to Friday: from 6am to 6pm (day shift) and Sunday to Friday from 9.30pm to 7am (night shift).
- Saturday: from 8am to 1pm.

Some deliveries and associated works may also occur outside of these hours. Trucks delivering materials to the compound area will enter the site via James Craig Road.

There may be some noise associated with the works inside the compound. BridgeWorks Alliance will endeavour to keep noise at night to a minimum. Flood lighting used at night within the compound will be directed away from nearby residences.

While this work may cause some inconvenience, the work is essential and we appreciate your patience.
